PROJECT SUN STREAK

WARNING NOTICE: INTELLIGENCE SOURCES AND METHODS INVOLVED

PROJECT NUMBER: 276 SESSION NUMBER: 01
DATE OF SESSION: 26 Jan 88 DATE OF REPORT: 26 Jan 88
START: 1308 END: 1410
METHODOLOGY: AWWAV VIEWER IDENTIFIER: 079

1. (S/NF/SK) MISSION: Conduct a utility assessment to determine the feasibility, reliability and applicability of AW in the SUN STREAK program. The target personality was Terry Waite. See attache L/S at Enclosure 1.

2. (S/NF/SK) VIEWER TASKING: Reply to Essential Elements of Information (EEI) regarding target personality.

3. (S/NF/SK) COMMENT: Session was conducted under ideal conditions in the CRV room. It became quite apparent that 079 was in fact utilizing a pen to "automatic write" in a form of channeling. The source of the data activity was described and identified as "George." There was some confusion during the first few 10 or 12 minutes of the session. The last 30 to 40 minutes of the session were astoundingly accurate. Noted that both the monitor or 079 were at liberty to call frequent breaks. The specificity of the targeting appeared to facilitate the session. Viewer 079 was encouraged not to declare AOL, not to question the data, nor interpret the data, but simply to receive ~~the~~ transmit the data. George indicated an ability to work in present, past and future time; and indicated a willingness to "do search".

4. (S/NF/SK) The personality was described as a "humanitarian" who had accomplished something on behalf of the "Americans." He was involved in special project involving freedom" he was a man of high ideals. He had formulated and was continuing to formulate plans despite his somewhat precarious situation. He was currently "hidden" through no fault of his own; he was located in a dry and humid climate where dark skin people lived. He was in the Middle East, and specifically in Beirut, Lebanon. He was being kept near an old temple currently not in use, down an old street, an "alley" where a purple cloth hung as a veil. A cross bearing gold and white stones was also visible (ENCL2). He was being used as a political lever. He will not break. There will be talk and evidence of negotiations in May 1988. And, barring the unforeseen, he will be returned to neutral territory in August 1988 with two other hostages whose release he is currently negotiating even while under captivity. Personalities name was spelled out in response to monitor's request (in an effort to determine whether or not this could literally be accomplished). See ENCL 3 The target personality was moved, however, he was not currently located in the "outskirts" as many people seemed to believe. In an effort to specifically identify the current location of the target personality, 079 was instructed to place an "X" and told to indicate 3 kilometers (south) of Beirut as the location. (See ENCL 4). See the Washington Post's article on the target personality.

Iran Said to Take Over Hostages

Iran Vetoed Deal for German Captive, Militia Official Says

By Nora Boustany
Special to The Washington Post

BEIRUT, Jan. 19—Church of England envoy Terry Waite, who was kidnaped one year ago, and other western hostages are now in the hands of Iranian Revolutionary Guards based here, and the Tehran government has banned further intervention by Lebanese groups in negotiations for their release, according to a senior Shiite militia official.

Waite and some of the 23 other foreign hostages are believed to have been seized by pro-Iranian Lebanese fundamentalists here. But the sources said the captors were angered three weeks ago after Tehran decided to halt any more mediation in the hostage crisis by local Lebanese and armed groups, according to the Moslem militia official.

The official, usually well-informed on Tehran's latest directions to its operatives in Beirut, extended that all future handling of the affairs would be carried out between the states—that is, between the governments of the United States and Iran.

At the start of the year, most captives have been held in the custody of Iranian Revolutionary Guards to prevent Lebanese groups, families or interlocutors from reaching agreements that are not strictly beneficial to Iran, according to Druze and Shiite Moslem militia sources.

In the final week of December, the sources said, Iran stepped in at the last minute and thwarted chances for a possible release of West German hostage Rudolf Cordes and American journalist Terry Anderson.

A deal had been set to free Cordes in exchange for TWA hijacking suspect Mohammed Ali Hamad, a ransom of $3 million and proof to the captors that 17 Shiite activists held in Kuwait on bombing charges were still alive and in good health, according to the sources. Anderson, the Beirut bureau chief of The Associated Press, was reportedly next in line to be released, the sources added.

On learning about the deal to free Cordes, Iran contacted its men here and said there would be no deal unless Bonn supplied it with material for manufacturing chemical weapons, arms and other technology. "The envoy in charge of the negotiations left for Bonn and that was the end of it," the militia source said.

Cordes, 53, a representative for the Frankfurt-based Hoechst chemicals company, was abducted by gunmen on the road to Beirut International Airport on Jan. 17 last year, a few days after arriving in Lebanon.

Three days later, Waite, 48, disappeared after leaving his Druze bodyguards outside the offices of a Shiite Lebanese doctor before heading for a meeting with the captors of two Americans.

Druze chieftain Walid Jumblatt said in an interview last weekend that he was still trying to find out whether it was possible to release Waite.

Since his kidnaping one year ago, Waite has been accused by his purported captors to have been working for the U.S. government, despite denials by Washington and Waite's employer Archbishop Canterbury Robert Runcie.

To those who remember him at the Riviera Hotel where he stayed, Waite was a strange mixture of humanitarian and a risk-taker who seemed bound to get into trouble.

"He wanted to show off, taking walks along the Corniche ... and parading in convoys of cars bristling with guns. He was really saying, 'I am Terry Waite. If you want me you know where I am, coming and going,'" recalled the manager of a seafront hotel.
